Meet Eric: An Agape Success Story

The English translation of the Spanish word, “Enamorado” is to be in love. There is no better way to explain how Agape feels about a student who was given that as his last name. Everyone who meets Eric, a Bolton Academy student, inevitably falls in love with his witty sense of humor, inquisitive nature, and unyielding determination to be his best. His well-rounded personality is a testament to his life experiences thus far.

At just seven years old, Eric had seen and done much more than many people experience in a lifetime. He and his little brother live only with their mother, who worked very hard in Honduras to provide a way for them all to travel to the United States. Eric loves to tell stories about his life in Honduras, a beautiful Central American country. Eric came to Agape in 2016, speaking little to no English, having limited social skills, and falling well behind the other students academically in his 2nd grade class. Unfortunately, it is easy for a student like Eric to get lost in the public school system and because of that, Agape’s in-school specialists and after-school staff made Eric’s development a top priority.

Now, one year later, Eric is fluent in English and is meeting, and in some cases exceeding academic standards, beyond his peers. He excelled in the Cindy Cupp Reading Program, finishing it in only two years, helping Agape maintain its goal of reading proficiency by the third grade. Eric was one of ten recipients of the Student of the Month award for the entire 3rd grade and he is incredibly outspoken and friendly. He often tells his teachers how happy he is to be able to come to Agape, but the truth is we don’t know what we would do without him. Eric and his family are just one example of why Agape strives to use academic excellence as a pathway out of poverty. We know that with help, we can truly make a difference, one child at a time. Stay tuned to our website for more updates on Eric’s story.

Programmatic Year-In-Review

- NBA Superstar, Dwight Howard and the Arby’s Foundation, visited Agape to promote healthy eating habits and literacy. Arby’s offered each student an Arby’s card filled with free meals for the summer weeks. Dwight Howard then distributed a fan-favorite book, Diary of a Wimpy Kid, to each Agape student and shared his story of success to our students. Dwight signed autographs and took photos with the Agape children.

- Agape partnered with UNICEF’s Kid Power program to help battle child hunger across the globe. Every student at Agape received a free “Kid Power Band”, which tracks activity and steps with a built-in pedometer and accelerometer. Approximately every 24,000 steps, our students earned a Therapeutic Food Packet for a malnourished child. Over a 3-month period, Agape collectively earned over 1,200 packets!

- Through an ongoing partnership with USTA and the Georgia Tennis Foundation, select Agape students were invited by Governor Nathan Deal to attend the 2nd Annual “Tennis Day in Georgia” ceremony. Our student had the pleasure of meeting Governor Deal and showing them their developing tennis skills on the court with Georgia Tech’s Collegiate Tennis Team.

- In partnership with Wells Fargo, Agape hosted Wells Fargo representatives to engage Agape students with interactive workshops about increasing their financial awareness. The curriculum was titled “Teach Children How to Save.” Roughly 50 students participated in this day of learning.
